Presents

AN AESOP SOUND FABLE

TUNING IN

By John Foster.

Al's pets present him with a radio. With it he tunes in Polar music, Hawaiian music and Spanish music. As the various tunes come in through the speaker, the old man dances accordingly.

He is so excited over the bull fight that he hears from Spain that he tries to fight his pet cow, Toredor fashion. The cow tells her old man who butts Al over the hill into his house.

The farmer smashes down upon his set just as the announcer strikes the gong three times.

AESOP SAYS:- " A TOMBSTONE HAS A GOOD WORD FOR A MAN WHEN HE'S DOWN".
